Michael's Eagle Project

The scouts in my afternoon crew gather around Ryan's sign at the beginning of the trail, celebrating a job well done.

For my Eagle Project, I designed and installed six trail signs along a trail within Edith Moulton Park. This project was a way to memorialize Ryan Corey, a former scout and great friend. The goal of my Eagle Project was to complete Ryan's project for him, and to give the many people who cherished him something positive to remember him by.

A lot of the work was done before the day of the project. I worked with Tim Werner from the City of Kirkland for approval of the signs, Crossroad Signs to print the signs, and Gibson Quinn who welded brackets to mount the signs onto the steel posts. On the day we finished the project, about 25 volunteers came out to dig holes and put the signs into the ground. In the end my project took 130 man hours to complete.

I would like to thank Troop 570, the City of Kirkland, Crossroad Signs, Gibson Quinn, and the Corey family for all of their help on my project.

Above, going clockwise: Crews mix and pour concrete to set the posts for the signs. Then, they check to make sure the posts are level as they are set.

Below: The Corey family with me to remember Ryan.
