My time in scouting has been a very fruitful one.

I've been lucky enough to enjoy many different and valuable experiences during that time including an outing at Philmont Scout Ranch, NYLT and lots of leadership positions within Troop 570.

My trek at Philmont High Adventure Scouting Camp is the most unique outing I attended and I will cherish the memories I created with that group of scouts for my entire life. Our 12-person crew, Fellowship of the Burro, backpacked 100 miles through the New Mexico wilderness, at altitudes of 6,000-12,000 feet in July. The highlight of the 10-day hike was sharing meals around the campfires.

National Youth Leadership Training (NYLT) has also been a huge part of my scouting career, and it very well should be considering I participated three years in a row. NYLT is a week-long youth leadership camp designed to grow better leaders in their troops and crews. Of all the organizations I've been a leader in, NYLT has taught me the most about legacy, support, and entertainment. My participation, first as a scout, and then as a staff member has helped me grow immeasurably. I credit my experiences at NYLT as helping me grow into my dream of writing for TV and doing stand-up comedy.

Amar's Eagle Project

After a freak wind storm a few years ago, Valley Camp in North Bend was left without a flagpole. I was tasked with installing a new flagpole that could withstand much higher winds.

First we created a large enough base out of concrete, then waited for it to dry so we could install the actual flagpole. When filling in the concrete we split people up into teams so that the process went smoothly. The most challenging part of this project was rescheduling the project twice.

I would like to give a huge thank you to everyone from Troop 570 who came out to support the project! It was a long drive and there was still snow, these people really sacrificed so I could finish my project.

A huge thank you to Troop 570 for helping with my Eagle Project.

Mixing the concrete.

Concrete is poured into the flagpole foundation.

May the Star Spangled Banner forever wave over Valley Camp.
