Reflections on Scouting

When I was 12, a friend recommended Scouts, so I thought I'd try it out to make some friends and have some fun activities to do. Little did I know, it would open up a whole new world of camping, hiking, and adventures. I chose Troop 570 because of how exciting their activity calendar looked, and it did not disappoint. I ended up joining trips and having experiences that I had never imagined. Some of my most memorable trips were Klondike, Summer Camp, a 50 miler in the North Cascades when I was 12, and Philmont. Through these outings and the rest of the scouting program, I learned cooking, communication, money management, knot tying, and project planning.

I would have had a lot harder time with all the work I did, and would not have gotten as much out of my scouting experience without all of the support of my parents, troop adults, merit badge counselors, and fellow Scouts. They provided me with information from their knowledge and experience, and were always there if I had a question about anything.

I still have two more years of Scouts, so I plan to continue to enjoy outdoor adventures and to improve my leadership skills.

Eric's Eagle Project

My Eagle Scout Service project was to build a new 400-foot trail in the forest at Hawthorn Farm. The new trail is a nice smooth surface to walk on for the students that are taking classes with the farm, and for the community when they visit the forest. It was very important to my beneficiary that we used sustainable methods, so part of that was to build the trail using only materials from the forest.

Volunteers dug up plants from the pathway, trimmed back shrubs from the side of the trail, cleared debris, and spread wood chips over it. Parts of the trail traveled along a steep hill, so we shored up the sides of those sections of the trail by placing logs supported by stakes. The hardest part was transporting the chips for a quarter mile through the forest and across a stream. The crew worked so quickly that we built twice as much trail as was agreed to.

Starting the planning process months beforehand gave me plenty of time to find a project, recruit volunteers, and thoroughly plan the project so that the project day would go as smoothly as possible. However, it wouldn't have mattered how much planning I did if volunteers weren't willing to donate their time and energy to helping me out. I am also thankful for our adult troop leaders, and especially Mr. Griffaton, who was my project mentor, for all the help they gave me over the course of the project.
