Reflections on Scouting

"Find things you enjoy doing in life and do those things. Scouting is a great way to find activities that you enjoy doing."

Jayden Lehner

Merit badges teach you new skills, outings give you experience with those skills and rank advancement bundles all of that up for the scout.

For me, scouting isn't all about rank advancement. It is more about the skills you learn and experiences you have that shape you in becoming an adult.

Scouting helped me select my college major. Scouting gave me some of my most fun experiences, like Klondike snow camp. Finally it taught me useful skills like leadership, communication and planning.

The people I have met in my Journey to Eagle have been great influences on my life. The value of scouting in my life cannot be understated and I am thankful for all of the adults and scouts that made it happen.

Jayden's Eagle Project

My Eagle project was building two benches for Inglemoor High School. We completed construction on July 15th and 16th of 2021. Inglemoor's students outnumber the number of seating spaces on campus by a large margin, so we built two benches for students and faculty to use. These benches will help give the students some better benches than some of the older plastic ones that are currently on campus.

Inglemoor High School was the high school that I graduated from in June of 2021. Inglemoor High School is a public high school in Kenmore, WA that I have lived next to for my entire life. I chose my high school because I wanted to give back to the school that gave me so many memories.

The challenge I ran into when completing this project was the amount of time I had allotted myself to complete it, which combined with not accounting for how long planning actually takes made it challenging. I had given myself only four months to go through the entire process of submitting a proposal, planning, and executing the project. Not allowing adequate time made the project completion more difficult than it needed to be.

If I had to give advice to Life scouts about Eagle projects, it is that you will spend two to three times as long planning versus executing the project. Submit your proposals early so you can come up with the best plan possible for your project. It will make execution day go smoother and be less stressful.

I want to thank everyone who made my project possible. A special thanks to Mr. Samdal for being my mentor on this project and my journey to eagle. A special thanks to Mr. Rainwater from Inglemoor High School for being so helpful with making this project go off without a hitch. A final thank you to all of the scouts and adults who showed up on project day to build the benches.

My Favorite Outings

My favorite outing during my time with Troop 570 was Philmont Scout Ranch. Mostly because of how awesome the event was, but partially because of how long I had to wait to go. I signed up to go to Philmont in 2016, for a time slot in 2018. The middle third of Philmont burned to the ground in 2018. My crew was rescheduled to 2020, subsequently canceled due to the COVID-19 pandemic. I finally went in 2021, and it was 2 of the best weeks of my life. While Philmont is a backpacking camp, the best part wasn't the hiking, but the activities at each of the camps. From skeet shooting to a COPE course, the best part of every day was the program at the end of each hike. Even though it took half a decade, I am extremely happy that I was able to go.

My other favorite outings are summer camp 2021, the 50 miler, and the Deschutes river rafting trip. I loved these outings because they were experiences that I could never get from another program. The 50 miler taught me more about leadership than any 3 other outings combined, 2021 summer camp let me be Senior Patrol Leader for an actual outing instead of a zoom meeting, and the river rafting trip was just a blast in general. Outings like those 3 are the reason I love scouting, and leaving after being part of the program for 12 years is a bittersweet experience.

Zak's Eagle Project

My Eagle Project was the construction of two picnic benches and eleven small cabinets for Acres of Diamonds, a homeless housing organization in Duvall, Washington. The picnic benches were replacements for a couple of their benches that had rotted into uselessness. The cabinets were so that each of the families in residence could have their own private storage area where they could store things like medications or valuable keepsakes.

The beneficiary of my Eagle Project was the organization Acres of Diamonds. Acres of Diamonds is a low income housing program in Duvall, Washington that specializes in helping homeless mothers and their children get back on their feet. I chose to work with them because it is the place where I did my volunteering for Citizenship in the Community, and I liked the work they did.

The main challenges I faced were related to planning. The bill for materials was hundreds of dollars higher than I expected, and I underestimated the amount of helpers that showed up. The other major challenge was the locks for the cabinets, the finding of which was a process that I almost completed too late.

Over 20 people helped on the day of my project, which was more than expected, so I had some difficulties finding tasks for everyone. But despite a few minor setbacks, the project was completed quickly and efficiently. Looking back, I was way more stressed about it than I needed to be.

My main advice for Life Scouts is to budget 50% more time than you think you need for planning, don't be afraid to ask for help, and to choose a project they want to do, not one they think will fulfill requirements.

I want to say thank you to everyone who helped me get to this ceremony today. Thank you Mr. Quinn and Mrs. Dearden for guiding me along the path. Thank you Mom and Dad for giving me a swift kick in the rear whenever it was necessary. Thank you to everyone who participated in my Eagle Project, and thank you to every Assistant Scout Master, patrol leader, and friend who has helped on my journey.
